

I have implemented basic 'phrase embedding' for entities and tags, using pre-trained 'Glove' word embedding. The simplest method is giving ~40% accuracy which is near to BLSTM. A little more change may give good results.

I did the analysis of low accuracy and found out following two major issues.

1. There are too many unknown words, due to which embeddings are less effective.
2. The embedding for Role are too close, if roles fall into same category. Example: PER_Others, PER_Victim or PER_Accused have similar embeddings.

TAG1 <==> TAG2: dist (= 1-cosine(TAG1, TAG2))

PER_Others <==> PER_Victim: 0.0635333109587

PER_Others <==> PER_Accused: 0.0665404923285

PER_Victim <==> PER_Accused: 0.0451649628778

This is why our model is getting confused among PER tags. This can be seen from actual results too.

1. PER_Victim

{'PER_Others': 107, 'LOC_Others': 0, 'ORG_Accused': 1, 'PER_Victim': 120, 'ORG_Victim': 2, 'O': 1, 'ORG_Others': 2, 'PER_Accused': 60, 'LOC_Accused': 1, 'LOC_Victim': 2}

2. PER_Accused

{'PER_Others': 168, 'LOC_Event': 9, 'LOC_Others': 12, 'ORG_Accused': 10, 'PER_Victim': 187, 'ORG_Victim': 4, 'O': 58, 'ORG_Others': 5, 'PER_Accused': 402, 'LOC_Accused': 4, 'LOC_Victim': 45}

If we can increase distance between same category roles, model could perform better.

```

All our models are failing to make distinction among similar category roles (PER_Others, PER_Victim etc).

So to test the effectiveness of our new method wrt 'Sequential Methods (CRF, BLSTM)', I did following mapping and run experiments.

PER_Accused, PER_Victim, PER_Others -> PER
LOC_xxx -> LOC
ORG_xxx -> ORG

If I map all PER_xxx to PER and LOC_xxx to LOC and so on in our method

===== Accuracy Class Wise =====
